Avocados are among the fastest growing superfruits used in the beauty industry and require very meticulous care to reach their full nutritional potential.

The ideal climate for avocados is tropical, with controlled humidity and little to no cold weather. The weather is detrimental to the survival of the avocado plant due to the size of the plant's roots. The roots of an avocado tree are short and extremely sensitive which means it can only get moisture from the top few inches of soil; therefore, the plant thrives in warmer temperatures where frequent watering is needed.

The Malaga, Granada, and Almeria regions (to name a few) have the subtropical weather that avocados need, making Spain an ideal location to create an integrated Short Oil Supply Chain for avocado oil. These areas provide the plant with the correct soil composition to ensure an optimal growth of the fruit and have a long history of irrigation expertise that contributes to making the cultivation of avocado water efficient.

Vantage™ works with farmers that are not only environmentally responsible but socially responsible too. By sourcing 100% of our avocados from Spain, we eliminate any concern related to employee's health & safety, child or forced labor. Lipovol™ Origin Avocado Oil Refined Spain opens a new chapter for brands that want to make a positive impact in the communities where their ingredients are sourced.

While the demand for avocado oil continues to grow in the personal care industry, Vantage™ wants to commit to local and reliable short supply-chains that provide complete traceability and social accountability.
